

APPARENTLY DEAD FOR HOUR, MAN RESUSCITATED

MINERS CONTINUE REPUDIATION OF ALL RADICALISM

Cries of "Gag Rule" in Convention Fail to Influence Voters.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 24.—(By The Associated Press)—Insurgents within the ranks of the United Mine Workers of America renewed attacks on President John L. Lewis when the convention was reconvened today and the credentials committee reported in favor of unseating Joseph Chiccolini of Pennsylvania. The charge made before the committee was that he was an officer in a "real organization—the progressive mine workers."

Amid considerable confusion, three standing votes were taken on the committee's report and after the third President Lewis declared the report adopted 886 to 399.

Opponents of the administration renewed cries of "railroading," "steam roller" and "gag rule."

Recognition of Russia in accordance with the policies enunciated by Secretary Hughes and approval of a national labor party proposal were pointed out by the insurgents, who said that "we must not destroy any structure that now affords a semblance of protection until such time as a new structure can be built" was urged last night.

The radicals resolutions provided for unqualified recognition of Soviet Russia and an unqualified endorsement of a labor party.

Personnel of the delegation to the international mining congress at Prague was forecast when President Lewis let it become known he favored election of Secretary-Treasurer Walter Nesbitt of the Illinois District and President Thomas Kennedy of District 7, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Mooney Seeks Aid

Mrs. Tom Mooney, whose husband is serving a sentence in San Quentin Penitentiary as a result of the San Francisco "Preparedness Day" bombing, called on President Lewis and explained she wished to be heard; that a new governor has been elected in California and a new petition is in preparation asking for the release of Tom Mooney. Mr. Lewis advised her to meet the resolutions committee.

Seven hundred fifty resolutions have been introduced.

Among those to be acted on are seven demanding that international organizers be elected instead of appointed by the international president; eleven demanding election of convention committees; 15 for the reinstatement of Alexander Howatt of Kansas and one condemning war and declaring that no miner should engage in war or join a military organization.

Among resolutions adopted yesterday was one instructing the union to use its influence for the repeal of convict labor laws and another asking enactment of a child labor law and old age pension laws.

Charges Called Untrue

A resolution offered by W. A. Guiler of Weaver, Penn., asking an investigation of the report that President Farrington of the Illinois district accepted $100,000 for allowing the Lester Ship Mine at Herrin, Illinois, to operate in 1922; and that President Lewis received "huge sums of money from the coal operators in 1922" were voted down on the committee's report that "the statement is unfounded and untrue."

A similar resolution offered by John Fletcher of Diverson, Illinois, calling for impeachment of President Lewis and the international board on the charge that they "utterly betrayed a fundamental principle of the union and have driven 100,000 coke region and Somerset county miners out of this organization" received the same treatment as "not founded on fact."

This resolution provoked a substitute denying the charges and praising President Lewis and the board.

FORD MADE 2,200,682

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Detroit, Jan. 24.—The Ford Motor Company made 2,200,682 automobiles, trucks and tractors in 1923—775,059 more than in any previous year, according to production figures announced today. Of the total 1,185,435 automobiles and trucks were made in this country and 175,474 in foreign plants, including Canada. As to total of these are added 101,474 tractors and 7,825 Lincoln cars.

A statement said:

"The production of more than 2,200,000 automobiles in one year probably is the greatest feat in manufacturing ever accomplished, especially in view of the fact that the Ford Company controls the complete manufacture and raw material supplies for a large proportion of everything that goes into the makeup of its products."

GREAT CROWD AT FOOD SHOW LAST NIGHT IS PLEASED

Best Show of Kind in History of Dixon Closes
Tonight.

Large crowds packed the big hall in the Countryman building on the second day of the big Pure Food Show held under the auspices of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce. The Pure Food Show is on the lips of people both far and near. Everyone is talking about the wonderful show and the remarkable display of foodstuffs. Long before the doors of the hall were opened, visitors began to arrive and were anxious to see all the many things that the exhibitors had to offer. The hall was completely filled after the doors were opened and a continual stream passed through the doors until 11 o'clock.

The estimated attendance for the second day was close to 1500. Tonight is the last night of the big show and the exhibitors are arranging to take care of the largest crowd that has ever attended a Pure Food show. The Goddess of Supplies announces that she has refilled her store rooms and that she will give more wares than ever before. She also announces that the big doll that is on display in the Bess Ross Booth. The more one views the big Pure Food Show, the bigger it seems, it grows on the visitor, many who have attended every day and found something new to interest them each time. Exclamations on beauty of appearances, change to marvels at the completeness of details in the exhibits. Many larger towns have not presented such a remarkable showing of food supplies.

"Cyclone" Case on Job

Rev. Case gave a very interesting talk that held the visitors spell-bound with his witty remarks and short snappy stories, illustrating what can be done in any community by co-operation. He emphasized that every citizen in the community owed something to the community and that it was only by working together helping each other that things could be accomplished in any community. Darby's Orchestra played throughout the evening and

Curtis rendered a number of selections that entertained the vast throng.

Miss Lucille Kelly acted as the Goddess of Supplies and waved the magic

Prisoners Took Up Collection to Buy Saw, Escaped Jail

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Independence, Missouri, Jan. 24.—A saw purchased by collection within the Jackson county jail here, officers said today, was used to gain freedom for 17 prisoners who escaped last night by sawing the hinges from an iron door and cutting three iron bars. Thirty-one prisoners refused to flee.

ALLEGED FORGER DEAD SOLDIER'S NAME UNDER PROBE

Woman is Charged with Using His Name to Get His Bonus.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Jan. 24.—Grand jury investigation was under way today of the forgery of the signature of a dead soldier, Eugene C. Brokaw, 1106 Main Street, Upland, an Illinois soldier's bonus check in connection with which Arthur Marquis and his wife, Ethel are under arrest.

Brokaw who formerly worked for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., in Chicago and who was a master signal electrician in Company D, 410th Telegraph Battalion, died last April. He previously had applied to the service recognition board for his bonus and the board, without notification of his death, on November 15, mailed the check for $300 to the Urbana address. In some way it was forwarded to Chicago and came into the possession of Mrs. Marquis.

Mrs. Marquis is alleged to have represented herself as the widow of Brokaw and to have said he used the name of Marquis when he married her, the date of which she gave as February 28, 1919. The attorney advised her to take the check to a bank which she did. As the check did not bear any endorsement by Brokaw, the bank refused to cash it.

Attorney is Accused.

Mrs. Marquis and her husband then are alleged to have gone to another attorney and through a third party convinced the attorney they were

Eugene Brokaw and his wife. He accepted the check which then bore an endorsement purporting to be that of Brokaw and gave them his personal check and the bonus check went through the banks and was paid to the attorney.

Although this is the first instance of the discovery of fraud in connection with the issuance of thousands of Illinois bonus checks, according to

P. D. Edmunds, chief clerk of the service recognition board, there are a number of other suspicious cases under investigation.

In connection with efforts to cash

the check, one of the attorneys is said to have advised Mrs. Marquis

she must get a certificate of her marriage to Brokaw in order to obtain payment on the bonus check. She did get a certificate of her marriage to

Marquis, but according to Mr. Edmunds' investigation of the court recorded showed she had been granted an annulment of her marriage to

Dines is Held Under Bond to Appear for Horace Greer's Case

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Los Angeles, California, Jan. 24.—Investigation of the shooting of Courtland S. Dines by Horace Greer, chauffeur for Mabel Normand, stood still today while authorities waited for the recovery of Dines from a bullet wound in the lung, pending resumption Jan. 30 of Greer's preliminary hearing on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

Testimony given by the wounded man at the hospital Monday displayed, according to the prosecution, such startling variance from other witnesses' reports of what he had said shortly after the shooting, that the court ordered Dines to post $5,000 bond to guarantee his appearance in court as a material witness.

DOHENY TELLS OF LOAN MADE TO SEC. FALL

Says He Let Secretary Have $100,000 of His Own Policy.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Washington, Jan. 24.—E. L. Doheny, California oil operator, testified today before the senate Teapot Dome committee that he had loaned $100,000 to former Interior Secretary A. B. Fall on November 30, 1921.

The purpose of the loan, Doheny said, was to enable Fall to enlarge his ranch holdings in New Mexico.

He added that the loan was made by him personally and the money did not belong to any oil company in which he is interested.

The resolution of Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, calling for cancellation of the lease of the oil reserve to Harry F. Sinclair, provided further fuel for debate in the senate today.

Mr. Doheny arrived from New Orleans and he is expected to be followed shortly from the same city by former Secretary Fall who headed the Interior department when the leases were negotiated.

Attorney General Daugherty was summoned to the White House today for a conference with President Coolidge but there was nothing to indicate whether any change had taken place in the administration policy of merely "observing" the Teapot Dome investigation.

Enjoyed Sleigh Ride Monday Eve

The members of Lona Becking-ham's class of the Bethel United Evangelical Sunday school enjoyed a sleigh ride Monday night to the home of Naomi, Luella, Alice and William Alter.

Games and music were the features of the happy evening. At a late hour an oyster supper was enjoyed, after which all the guests departed for home, all having enjoyed the evening very much, even if it was rather cold weather. There were twenty-two young people present.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

Cake Icing.

A little vinegar in your cake icing will keep it from becoming too sugary.

For Good Health.

In place of an apple a day, eat two vegetables beside potatoes or dried beans, to keep the doctor away. Cabbage and carrots are especially beneficial when eaten raw.

Boiling Vegetables.

Vegetables should not be over-cooked. In boiling, use only enough water to cook them without burning. Over-cooking results in an unnecessary loss of mineral salts and vitamins. It also injures the flavor and color.

Saving of Sugar.

When cooking cranberries put in a pinch of bicarbonate of soda and less sugar will be required.

SISTER Mary's KITCHEN

BY SISTER MARY.

SPICE CAKES.

Don't you love to go into a house that smells of "sugar and spice and all things nice" on a cold winter's day?

It's one of the most appetizing and tantalizing smells of the kitchen.

The first cake makes a delicious dessert without any fruit or ice cream to accompany it.

Spice Cake I.

Four eggs, 1½ cups brown sugar, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 2½ cups flour, ½ cup butter, 1 cup sweet milk, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Cream butter and beat in sugar.

Beat one whole egg and the yolks of three until thick. Add one-half cup of flour to butter and sugar and mix well.

Then beat in the eggs. Mix and sift flour with baking powder, cinnamon and salt and add alternately with milk to first mixture.

Turn into a buttered and floured dripping pan and bake half an hour in a moderate oven. Let cool slightly and cover with the following frosting:

Brown Sugar Frosting.

Whites of three eggs, 1½ cups brown sugar, 3 teaspoons cold water.

Beat whites of eggs with cold water on a big platter until stiff and dry.

Roll brown sugar on a molding board until smooth and free from lumps. Beat sugar into eggs and spread mixture on cake. Put into a hot oven to brown.

Spice Cake II.

One and one-quarter cups brown sugar, 1 cup sour milk, 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon salt, ½ cup butter and lard mixed, 1 teaspoon soda, 2 cups flour, 1 cup seeded raisins, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg.

Cream shortening and sugar. Add egg well beaten. Mix and sift flour, salt and spices. Sift over raisins.

Add half the sour milk to the first mixture. Mix well and add dry ingredients. Mix thoroughly. Dissolve soda in remaining sour milk and add to mixture. Beat until perfectly smooth.

Four into a buttered and floured loaf pan and bake from 45 to 60 minutes in a moderate oven.

Little Spice Cakes.

Three eggs, 1 cup brown sugar, 1 cup molasses, ¼ cup cold water, ¼ cup lard, ¼ cup butter, 1 tablespoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon ginger, 1 tablespoon soda, boiling water, 3 cups flour, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Beat eggs very light with a Dover beater. Continue beating with the beater and beat in sugar. Beat in molasses. Remove beater and add as much flour as will stir easily. Soften, not melt, shortening and stir into mixture. Add remaining flour, spices and salt. Mix well. Dissolve soda in a little boiling water and stir into batter. Dry from the spoon into little patty pans. Bake in a hot oven for 15 minutes.

This batter will keep for two weeks on ice or covered in a cold place and can be used as needed. Warm drop cakes can be had on short notice when the cake batter is on hand.

Social Circle in

Happy Meeting

The members of the Prairieville Social Circle held a meeting yesterday with Mrs. Charles Erickson, with twenty-seven members, seven guests and eight children present. It proved a most interesting and delightful day.

An especially beautiful picnic dinner was served, the table presenting a most inviting appearance with its burden of delicious food, at noontide.

The devotions were followed by a business meeting during which plans were completed for the annual mid-winter picnic to be held Feb. 26th, at the Prairieville church, to which all the members, their families and friends are cordially invited to attend.

Music on the player piano was enjoyed, and special mention should be made of the two violin solos by Mrs. Erickson, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Edith Myers. Mrs. Carl Straw gave a reading, "An Out-raged Stomach's Dairy," which was unusual and most humorous.

The next regular meeting will be held in four weeks from yesterday with Mrs. Charles Reed at her home north of Prairieville.

MYSTIC WORKERS TO

MEET FRIDAY EVENING—

The Mystic Workers will meet Friday evening in Union hall. At this time a number of the Supreme officers will be in attendance. A large class of candidates will be initiated into the mysteries of the order, the work being put on by the Dixon Drill team. On account of the large amount of work to be done the meeting will start promptly at 7:45 o'clock. After the meeting a social time will be enjoyed. A large attendance of the members is expected.

Comedy-Drama "Sarah Sidesteps"

At the Methodist church Saturday evening, Jan. 26th, the Interstate Lyceum Bureau will present the Chicago Lyceum Players in the comedy-drama, "Sarah Sidesteps," and without a doubt it will be one of the banner entertainments in the course sponsored by the Y. P. M. S. of the Methodist church. The entertainment will start at 8 o'clock and the church, it is anticipated, will be crowded. The Chicago Lyceum Players come exceedingly well recommended.

This is a well known company of musicians and entertainers who put on a program that takes an audience by storm. A very clever comedy drama, "Sarah Sidesteps," is given in the form of an entire evening offering and music and miscellaneous numbers are interspersed. The Chicago Lyceum Players have exclusive Lyceum and Chautauque rights for "Sarah Sidesteps." It is one of the few plays which can be successfully presented by a small cast and under widely varied conditions.

Miss Gladys Houston takes the leading role of Mrs. Weatherby. She has able assistance in the three members selected to appear with her. All have extended professional experience. The play, "Sarah Sidesteps," is very funny and the acting is extremely clever.

It is especially worthy of note here that there is nothing whatever of an objectionable nature in the play given by the Chicago Lyceum Players. Mr. Phil Wilmarth, playwright, stands for the highest possible ideals of clean living and clean thinking, but if you enjoy fun and like to laugh as you pass through life, you will find cause for unbounded enjoyment in the program of these talented players here.

Due to the new pencil silhouettes, skirts are growing shorter.

A frock like a meal sack that extends to the ankles is hardly graceful. On the other hand a straightline frock that extends only to a point well above the ankles is youthful and simple and becoming.

That's why the dresses grow shorter again day by day.

The new French gowns and separate skirts are 12 and 14 inches from the sole of the foot. It may be some time before we come to that again. For the present New York designers are content with eight or 10 inches from the floor as the correct length.

Osteopaths Claim a Victory in Opinion of Supreme Court

The local osteopaths, Dr. Trowler and Dr. McNicol have received letters from the secretary of the State Osteopathic Association giving a synopsis of the recent opinion of the Supreme Court in the case of the People vs. Schaeffer, an osteopath in Chicago, who had been practicing surgery. Suit was brought in order to test the validity of the present medical act. The decision rendered by the Supreme Court is one of the most signal victories for osteopathy ever won in the courts of any of the states. Briefly the opinion accomplishes the following results:

1. Re-affirms the case of People vs. Love and holds the entire Medical Practice Act of 1917 invalid.

2. Holds the entire Medical Practice Act of 1899 invalid because of its manifest discrimination against osteopaths and schools of osteopathy, particularly with reference to surgery and obstetrics.

3. Makes it clear that no Medical Practice Act will be held valid if it confers a monopoly of surgery or obstetrics on so-called medical schools or systems of healing.

The Attorney General is asking for a re-hearing in this case. Whether or not the Supreme Court will grant this or not will not be known until some time in February.

A document dated A. D. 288, dealing with government extravagances, is still in existence.

EPWORTH LEAGUE NOTES

Sunday's devotional meeting was conducted by Eunice Thompson and was a well-spent hour for those who attended. The discussion topic was "Youth and Education" from the mission book now being studied by the League. First, reports were made in the contest which is being carried on. Four people on each side read the questions they had been given, the number of people they had asked and what their opinions were. James Andrews' side scored 34 points to the 17 points gained by Helen Corbin's side. This week the contest bids fair to be a lively one for both sides are determined to win. The advantage of this contest is that practically the entire League is set to thinking for itself on the question for the evening. Following the checking up of points Eunice Thompson gave some unusual facts as discovered by the author of the book in a survey of the pupils of three Pittsburgh schools. From the questions given out to the pupils by Dr. Marsh, some of the results received were these: That 54 per cent of the girls do not look beyond high school and that 71 per cent of the boys expect to go to college; that reading was the favorite amusement of over half the girls and one third of the boys; that music, dancing and movies received very low percentages as favorites; that Washington and Lincoln received the highest number of votes as the national ideals of the students; that in expending $10,000, 28 per cent of the girls and 45 per cent of the boys would invest it, 25 per cent would spend it on themselves and 19 per cent of the girls and 5 per cent of the boys would help others with it; and that 100 per cent thought betting on athletics was wrong.

The study of this interesting book will be continued next Sunday when Miss Clara White will discuss the chapter on "Youth and Physical Efficiency."

The material in this section is very practical and well presented so that the hour spent on it will be worth while. Epworthians should make a special effort to be there that evening.

At Sunday's League meeting the 24 hour day plan for local financial support as recommended by the budget committee was accepted by the League itself. The signing of pledge cards was started in order to begin the new system on February first.

The local chapters of Senior and Intermediate Leaguers have a group of thirty young people enrolled as comrades of the Morning Watch. They are pledged to spend at least fifteen minutes daily in Bible study, meditation and prayer.

Last week's "Epworth Herald" contained the report of the great Student Volunteer Convention which recently met in Indianapolis. Over seven thousand students representing 600 American colleges were in the assembly. There was the spirit of the revolt of youth at Indianapolis. The actual outworkings of that revolt were evidenced in many incidents, but in all of these there was the same determination, the same sincerity of purpose to find a way in which all hamperings of whatever source might be cut through to the real heart of the problems which the youth of the world are facing today. The convention in which John R. Mott was one of the speakers, was one of the most unusual of its kind ever held.

Intermediates are also finding lots of interesting things in the mission study book. Zelma Lentz is to present the next chapter Sunday night.

The Epworth League pledge which the young people strive to live up to will be interesting reading for many older folks:

"I will earnestly seek for myself, and do what I can to help others attain, the highest New Testament standard of experience and life. I will refrain from taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name

BANKRUPT FARMS.

Seventeen out of every 200 farm owners in the 15 corn and wheat producing states lost their farms between 1920 and the spring of 1923. Hard times "wiped them out." Many others would have gone bankrupt, except for the leniency of bankers and other creditors.

About one out of every 100 business firms fail each year in the United States. So the farmer, as an institution, was hit about four times as hard by depression as the average business organization, in the matter of absolute disaster.

Life hasn't been easy picking for most of us, since May, 1920, when prosperity went on the rocks. But the farmer has been hit hardest of all.

MANY GERMANS IDLE.

Germany has three and a quarter million men without jobs. If these men were working full-time, at only $3 a day, it would mean at least three billion dollars a year added to the total of German wages.

When you ponder this big sum, in connection with German war reparations, you realize that there is nothing more important in international politics than any measure to keep Germany fully employed.

TALKERS.

How often do you use the phone? Nearly 25 billion conversations a year pass over the telephone wires. This is about 230 calls for every man, woman and child in the country. Less than one a day.

There's a phone for approximately every seven Americans. So the average phone is used about 1600 times a year.

Many now living can recall when the phone was only a toy of the experimenters. With this precedent, it's safe to make almost any prediction for the future of radio and airplane.

ELECTRIC.

Epilepsy and many other diseases of the nervous system and endocrine glands are decidedly influenced by the amount of electricity in the air at various times, according to a British scientist.

Which suggests that electricity eventually may be the Great Medicine. This is doubly probable, in view of the theory that matter or material is "solidified electricity" and the body an electrical machine.

HOME-BREW.

Some of the big manufacturers of soft drinks are understood to have made large contributions to the prohibition campaign, with the idea that the passing of the saloon would stimulate the sales of soft drinks.

Oscar Hogenesen of the Illinois Bottlers of Carbonated Beverages Association says in a speech that prohibition has dealt soft drinks a body blow. Ginger ale and the like have fallen by the wayside. The national drink is "home-brew."

This condition may be temporary. But it illustrates how any movement is apt to become a boomerang.

THE PRODIGY.

A former child now 26, who graduated from Harvard when he was 16, recently was discovered working for $23 a week. This has attracted a lot of attention and comment. But the chief thing it shows is that Americans measure success by dollars.

That is a wrong notion. Steinmetz didn't leave much. But he was one of the 10 most successful men of his generation.

DARE-DEVIL.

In 1757 John Childs climbed to the top of a high steeple in Boston and jumped off, alighting safely 700 feet away. He was one of the pioneer aviators, demonstrating a sort of parachute contraption. Boston recently honored him with a bronze tablet or scientific billboard.

BRAINS—KNOWLEDGE.

We Americans are described as "the best half-educated people in the world," by Israel Zangwill. Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia University says Zangwill flatters us—that his estimate is too high.

Butler is right. Even our brainiest men do not know more than a thousandth of 1 per cent of the Truth. Education is simply a process of extending our horizon—revealing the gigantic extent of what we do not know. Man learns little, in reality. He merely increases his conception or consciousness of his ignorance.

BIG AUTO INCREASE.

There's an auto or motor truck in our country now for approximately one in every seven people. The latest check-up shows there were 15,281,295 passenger cars and motor trucks in the United States at the beginning of 1924. It was a gain of nearly a fourth in a year.

Twenty years from now, or sooner, you may read similar statistics about airplanes, the coming popular form of transportation. Evolution is taking up off the ground, to which we have been "chained" for thousands of years. It corresponds to the first fish which, wanting to fly, grew its fins into wings.

When Americans wrestle they call it dancing, according to Pavlova. And no holds barred.

The Old Guard surrenders, but it never dies.—Philadelphia Record.

Tom Sims
NEWSPAPERUNDERWEAR ON NIGHT DUTY.
Famous Senator Makes It Labor Longer Hours.

Washington's agog. Senator Magnus Johnson says he wears no pajamas. Sleeps in his underwear. It wasn't a bedbug that told this, it was Magnus in person. In person, not in underwear. The fact that he sleeps at all is also exciting comment.

FASHIONS.

Pink pajamas with blue stripes to be worn while putting the cat out are chic and something new.

COMICS.

Well, what are pajamas? Just educated nightgowns.

BEAUTY SECRETS.

A ribbon tied around your cat's neck is the cat's pajamas.

SOCIETY.

When Mrs. Gossip heard Magnus Johnson had no pajamas she said, "Senator Johnson wears underwear for pajamas, but my grandpa wears pajamas for underwear."

Whispering, Mrs. Gossip continued, "I haven't seen Mr. Neighbor's pajamas hanging on the wash line for three weeks. I don't like to criticize, but two weeks is long enough."

HEALTH HINT.

Lining the pajamas with tacks may get you up early, but it is not a healthy habit.

HOME HELPS.

When fringes on bottom of papa's pajamas get long enough use them to make Willie a cowboy suit.

RADIO NOTES.

Work the radio in pajamas and you may get static in your attic.

ADVERTISING.

Have you seen our underwear? Detachable legs and sleeves turn it into a bathing suit. Patented seams make it useful as a sheet or a tent in case of rain. May be worn as a Palm Beach suit. Everwear Co.

FOREIGN NEWS.

News from New York says they have no pajama shortage. Wire informs us they buy enough pajamas from theater managers giving musical comedies and bedroom farces to keep the millions well supplied.

ETIQUETTE.

If the invitation says "full dress" do not wear pajamas.

WEATHER.

Cool enough for pajamas tonight.

MARKETS.

Pajama shortage in Washington.

EDITORIAL.

"Every problem solved creates more problems," said Al Apple once. The cave man had no electric light to be turned on suddenly. So he was not afraid to sleep without pajamas. Now you should wear pajamas.

FICTION.

"I like pajamas," said the senator from Minnesota.

SPORTS.

Kid Magnus Johnson, champion sleeper as is, needs a new trainer for the coming presidential bout. Kid Johnson has no pajamas. This may give him a cold in the head, among other things he has there.

BEDTIME STORY.

"It isn't cold. Next time you put your pajamas on over your underwear I'll spank you."

"Quiet now, please!" called out Humpty Dumpty pompously.

"Another riddle! Another riddle!" cried everybody in Riddle Land. "Here comes the Riddle Lady."

Nancy made a curtsy and Nick made a bow and everybody else did the same. Oh, but they did like the Riddle Lady—everybody did!

"Quiet now, please!" called out Humpty Dumpty pompously. "The Riddle Lady has a new riddle to guess."

So she began at once so as not to keep them waiting:

"Kerchug! Kerchug! In your little green sack
So neatly buttoned straight up your back,
With little black buttons like little black pills
O'er your little green tucker with little white frills.

"Chuglug! Chuglug! With your googly eyes,
Rolling 'round and 'round as you look for flies,
In your waterproof booties and stockings to match,
And a bib on your chin the crumbs to catch!

"Clumpalump! Clumpalump! Your tongue's a queer lump!
It goes like a fiddle with a very loose string.
Though it's not good for music, it's fine for a spoon,
To catch little skeeters you see, by the moon.

"Chuglorum! Chuglorum! You'd better watch out!
Moore googly eyes than yours are about.
And your nice little jumper and booties and sack
Won't keep Mister Owl from finding your track.

"So you'd better be shutting your heady black eyes,
And folding your spoon of a tongue, if you're wise,
And cuddle down cozily, safe in your bed,
With blankets of mud pulled up over your head."

"It's a frog!" called out Jill. "I know because there are a lot of them where Jack and I go for water. 'But Mister Bull Frog doesn't wear a bib or booties. He wears a white satin waist coat and green satin breeches!"

"Of course, he does!" nodded the Riddle Lady. "It's just the little frogs the riddle is about. But you get the prize just the same. It's a nice new bucket to keep in your new house that Jack built on Broom Street. But if I were you, I'd have a well and a pump so you won't have to carry the water so far. Then there wouldn't be any danger of anybody falling down and breaking his crown."

Homeopathic Doses

BY BERTON BRADLEY

"I put an ad in the paper once.
But that was one of my foolish stunts."

Said Hiram Gubbins. "I want a say. That advertising don't nohow pay. A two-inch ad was what I run.

In just one issue and only one, For that was enough to show me plain That advertising don't bring me gain."

Said the ad man then, "if you used that dope
In estimating the worth of soap You'd wash one finger—and then assert That soap had little effect on dirt.
You'd dip one foot in the bath some night,
And claim that bathing was useless quite!

That soap and water were more or less completely futile for cleanliness.
"If you'd be clean you must get the habit
Instilled by Ivory, Pears or Babbitt,
You must wash a lot in a thorough way
And bathe—well, anyhow Saturday!
And advertising is much the same,
It's keeping at it that wins the game;
And he—you'll pardon me—is a dunce
Who puts an ad in the paper—once!"

UNCLE SAM STUDIES FEET OF THE WORLD

Commerce Department Finds Shoe Leather Used the Same in Brazil as at Thebes—American Shoes Supreme.

IN HIS efforts to build up the foreign trade of the United States Uncle Sam is making a thorough study of the feet of the world. He is finding out which nations have long narrow feet, which have short, broad feet, which have thick feet and which have thin.

Incidentally he is learning things about the foot customs of the globe that throw a bright light on the habits of the ancient Assyrians and Egyptians and which make the characters of Babylonian dancers and Roman emperors seem familiar ones.

Through the Bureau of Domestic and Foreign Commerce at Washington, linking the activities of consuls in all quarters of the world, he is finding out social tendencies and pedestrian requirements purely for the benefit of American manufacturers of shoe leather. In his own precise language, he is making a world survey of the foot and shoe industry, but it is really more than that. Uncle Sam is resurrecting the ghosts of the past and determining the shape of footprints that the ghosts of the future will leave behind them on the sands of time.

The Shoe and Leather Manufacturers Division of the Bureau is in charge of the survey, which has been under way for some time and which will be concluded in the near future. It has numerous reports from consuls in the various districts of Germany, France, Italy, Greece, Mexico, Jamaica, Peru, Bolivia, Holland, Brazil, Venezuela and other countries. They give very definite facts for the guidance of American manufacturers in conquering world trade. They also hold a great deal of romance and historical charm for those who care to study them analytically.

The manufacturer is delighted because they show beyond argument that American styles and the American built shoe are in the ascendancy in every corner of the globe.

Invading Europe. They are invading Europe. Since the war, Uncle Sam has learned, the German shoe has changed from the long, square appearance formerly distinguished it and the Germans are making and wearing the pointed toe and long "vamp" that distinguish the American one.

The French, who lean toward short shoes with high heels, brief vamps and rounded toes, still cling fondly to this style, but the American contour is making big inroads even here, according to the reports of consuls. The short vamp and high heels were originally adopted for the purpose of shortening perspective and leading to deception as to the size of the foot. They are a sort of secret diplomacy. That they are giving place to the frank American confession of actual size seems to indicate that in shoes the doctrine of "open covenants openly arrived at" is attaining success.

Leather Most Used

The only American departure that is not being taken up to any extent is that of the substitution of other materials for leather. The majority of the world has always trod on leather and apparently is determined to continue doing so.

In some of the older sections of Europe, wooden clogs, often with leather uppers and leather inner-soles, are used. In the backward sections of South America sandals of rope are used when the people do not go entirely barefoot. Some French housewives use felt sandals in the house. These customs are still firmly entrenched, just as firmly as the use of leather for the majority of purposes. They give one of the evidences the bureau is uncovering of the essentially unchanging character of human nature.

Shoes Classed With "Valuables"

This is further exemplified by a custom of Jamaica, where shoes are considered by the natives to be a considerable luxury. It is not uncommon on that island to see natives on their way to church or to a social gathering carrying their shoes in their hands. When they arrive at their destination they ceremoniously put them on and enter into the business of the occasion. An identical custom was observed in early Egypt. Men of rank in going from place to place were followed by servants who carried sandals. When occasion warranted the sandals were placed on the aristocratic feet of their owners.

Brazil brings a parallel to Biblical times and to those of the Roman Empire. Brightly colored shoes, such as those mentioned in Exodus of "ram's hide dyed red," are dear to the Brazilian heart. And Brazilian damsels follow the custom of Julius Caesar, descendant of the Albanian Kings, who was the only Roman entitled to wear red shoes seven days a week.

Even the New York girl would recently have considered it a hardship if she had to obey the rule that even the noblest Roman in Caesar's time observed on pain of death. That was to wear red shoes on no more than one day a week.

The persistence of the sandal, and of the low shoe that approximates the sandal in the warmer countries of South America, and even in southern France adds its testimony, too, to the perfection with which the earliest man in history solved the best use of shoe leather.

Leather Sandals Persist

In La Guaira, Venezuela, about nine-tenths of the inhabitants wear, according to the consul there, "sandals consisting of a beelless sole leather sole and a cloth top which covers the fore part of the foot. A cloth heel-strap holds the sandal in place." These sandals, or "alpagatas," if they were found beside his bed on arising by the earliest Egyptian of them all, would not amaze him. Egyptian shoes were made just that way.

In the region of Bordeaux, France, on the other side of the world, there is a sandal called the "Kneipp," which is very popular. It is of calf leather, with ornamented vamp and fastened with a strap, very much after the fashion of the most ancient people. Another type, called the "Charentais," is made of heavy felt, with a leather sole, and it is just as popular in Bordeaux as it would have been at Thebes. Nor are these sandals a fad of the moment. They have tradition behind them.

Fashion in design and color is an important factor in every country. The variety of native habits revealed proves the merit of American shoes in being able to make inroads against them. The consul at La Paz, Bolivia, reports the making of special shoes with very high tops and heels, and of colored leather. They are for the "chola" women and as with all Bolivian shoes have very high in steps.

The consul at Callao, Lima, Peru, reports the shoes made for men are broad, short, high heeled, flashily finished and with many differently colored uppers.

"Quality," he writes, "is not the ruling factor in purchase, since five or six pairs of fancy shoes register higher, socially, than two or three pairs of plain quality shoes."

Rome reports that in Italian shoes the styles and cut are extremely varied. Short, broad lasts seem most popular, while patent leathers, odd colors and fancy tops appeal to most buyers.

Returning to South America there is found an interesting survey of shoes in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, the Paris of that continent. The heat results in most men's shoes being oxfords, very few high shoes being made. Most of the women's shoes are pumps. Special style shoes, which sell for only a short time and are replaced by new designs, are the rule here as in other mercantile countries.

"In the past," reports the consul, "the people always desired a shape which would make their feet look small. This is still true in the case of women's shoes, although recently a sharp pointed shoe was introduced which met with considerable success."

In Rio the principal colors are tan, black and white. Sport shoes of tan and white with outstanding designs are in moderate demand. "These sport shoes," it is reported, "are made more for show than for comfort as is commonly the case in the United States. On account of the Centennial Exposition there was considerable demand for women's ballroom shoes embroidered with vari-colored beads. The most common colors used were gold and silver. Bright colored beaded shoes in varied designs are usually made to order. Congress boots are produced in moderate quantities for sale in the interior of the country."

From France come the following reports, among others. The consul at Bordeaux writes: "Formerly French boots and shoes had a very short vamp, and such shoes are still sold to a great extent. However, the present tendency is toward the American style with its long vamp, and the best ready-made shoes manufactured in France today are identical with the American styles."

The consul general at Havre reports that style is the dominant factor in trade and that quality and comfort are of only secondary importance. "The outstanding features of all French styles," he reports, "are round toes, short vamps and extremely high heels."

Reports from Germany are typified by that from the consul at Dresden. "The shoes manufactured in Germany," he states, "can scarcely, if at all, be differentiated from the American product. This is in marked contrast to the situation which existed until the outbreak of the war, when German shoes still had a long, square appearance and could be readily distinguished from the American product."

Our Beautiful Feet

It is likely that as a result of Uncle Sam's present study the beauty of the world's feet will be improved. From various places, in South America particularly, come reports of a short, broad, thick foot that is far from the standards of beauty he believes in. It is probably due to the style of shoes that have been used. That the American foot seems more beautiful even to the possessor of the aforesaid stubby feet, seems proved by the universal liking the peoples of the earth are showing, both by purchase and imitation, for the American way of shaping shoe leather.

BET HE PASSED

The doctor was examining Bosworth, a hospital corpsman, for advancement in rating. "What would you do if the captain faints on the bridge?" "Bring him to," warbled the aspiring corps. "Then what?" asked the doctor. "Bring him two more," returned the glib—Naval Weekly.

Belleville Policeman Tells of Recovery

"If I ever need medicine again I'll go straight for Tanlac as a martin goes for his gourd," is the characteristic statement of William J. Bader, well-known police patrolman, of 320 Paul Ave., Belleville, Ill. "Two years ago the flu left me feeling 'draggy' and no-account and my legs were so weak I could hardly walk my beat. My kidneys were also bothering me and my back and legs hurt me so bad at night I would just roll and toss about in pain. "Tanlac gave me a big appetite and put me to enjoying my food. Then the pains all went away and I got to sleeping like a top, walking my beat OK and feeling fine. Tanlac was wonderful for me and I'll testify for it any time." Tanlac is for sale by all good drug stores. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

QUARTER CENTURY OF MARRIED LIFE OF HARMON FOLKS

Friends of Mr. and Mrs.
W. H. Kugler Helped Them Celebrate.

Harmon—Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kugler celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Friday evening, Jan. 18th at their home. The affair was sponsored by Mr. Wm. Kranov, Mrs. George Ross and Mrs. Nellie Smith. The crowd gathered at the Fred Whitmore home and when the guests arrived they departed for the Kugler home where they surprised and serenaded them royally. Mrs. J. C. Wadsworth, of Dixon, was in charge of the games which kept the crowd laughing with humorous stunts. Mrs. Nellie Smith in behalf of the guests read this little verse:

"Uncle Willie, Aunt May, please accept this token,
Which shows our esteem more than words that are spoken.
Our heartiest wishes, may your next 25 years,
Have abundance of sunshine and very few tears.
We wished to surprise you, and we are sure that we did,
Now please remove the cover and see what is hid!"

Delicious refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cakes, pickles, fruit salad, whipped cream and coffee, a lovely bride cake adorned the dining room table which was later cut in 50 pieces for the guests.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Snader and Mr. and Mrs. C. Tourtelott, of South Dixon; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hess, and Mr. and Mrs. H. U. Eakle, of Van Patten.

Mr. and Mrs. Kugler were married 25 years ago at Manson, Iowa. The affair being a double wedding as Mrs. Kugler's sister, Bell, now Mrs. Charles D. Gaunt, of Cedar Rapids, Iowa, was married at this time. The bride and groom came at once to Harmon where they have resided continuously ever since. Mr. Kugler at the time of his marriage was manager of the Harmon creamery. About eighteen years ago he helped to organize the Harmon bank and is now one of the chief officers. He has for a number of years run a successful grocery store and is also manager of the Green River Telephone Co. Mrs. Kugler is an active member in the Harmon M. E. church worked for its advancement. For a number of years before the little church was remodeled they opened up their home for church socials and community functions and the people of the gift presented was but a slight testimony of the appreciation they feel for all the services this worthy couple have rendered this community. The guests left this hospitable home wishing the hosts continued happiness and prosperity.

German Chemistry Achieves Another Triumph.

Nothing is so important in medical practice as the conquest and elimination of pain. For many years German scientists have specialized on this subject, producing many of the most important medical discoveries of the age, among which are Aspirin for the relief of headache and Novocain for painless dentistry. Now, from the same source comes Buhler Oil for rheumatic pain, a scientific formula that penetrates the skin and tissues rapidly, soothing the pain almost instantly, and in a few minutes producing that comfortable feeling that means so much to sufferers.

Knowing that rheumatic pains must have a definite cause, these German chemists persisted in their experiments, finally arriving at the conclusion that toxic poisoning from clogged intestines was transmitted through the blood to joints and muscles, causing inflammation. After that it was a problem of finding the right combination of materials to counteract and quickly end the pain.

Buhler Oil has been used by an immense number of people with almost long-standing cases have responded quickly to this remarkable lubricant. So astonishing have been the results and so universal the praise accorded Buhler Oil by users that local druggists are glad to endorse it and will cheerfully refund your money if it will not thoroughly satisfy you. Buhler Oil is for sale in this city by Public Drug & Book Co., Rowland's Drug Store, Sterling's Pharmacy, Thomas Sullivan—Adv.

WHAT'S GOING ON IN THE WORLD

CHIEF EVENTS OF THE WEEK BRIEFLY TOLD

Mexican Revolt—Democratic Convention—Germany

BY CHARLES P. STEWART

NEA Service Writer

That the Washington administration is somewhat on the side of the Mexican government against the Mexican rebels isn't disputed. By most Americans it seems to be agreed that it's a pretty good government fighting some pretty bad rebels. Yet the administration's considerably criticized in Congress for taking any side whatever. This isn't on the ground that the administration's on the wrong side now. It's on the ground that its example of side-taking may be imitated some time, some place, when and where the situation's merits are different.

After the Rebels.

To get at rebel hands he hopes to destroy, President Obregon is sending troops through this country from northwestern to northeastern Mexico. There's no railroad on his side of the border. On this side there is. The Washington administration gave its permission and so did the governors of Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

Americans Threatened.

United States warships have been sent to Tampico, where the rebels control. There are hints at the possible use of marines to protect American interests, should they be interfered with. However, it's hoped the warships' presence will serve as a sufficient warning.

Just a Straw.
The fact that New York got the Democratic convention doesn't necessarily mean much in connection with the presidential nomination. Still, the choice of a convention city generally is regarded as weighing a little. If New York's success counts at all, politicians consider it a point in favor of an eastern candidate.

Can't Do Much.

Though the British government's on the very verge of passing, for the first time in history, into the hands of a Labor premier—Ramsay MacDonald—he can't do anything very radical. His followers are in a minority in Parliament. He won't be able to make a move except with the Liberal's help. The minute he goes to any extreme the Liberals will desert the Laborites. MacDonald will go out of office automatically and there will have to be another election.

German Finances.

As head of the financial experts' committee engaged in trying to make German money worth something, to put the Berlin government on a money-saving basis and then to get Germany to paying war damages, Charles G. Dawes is hurrying matters. In Paris until Europe's head matters. But the question remains: Will France agree to any plan likely to help Germany?—Isn't it Germany's ruin she wants, more than her money? Time will answer.

Bird Houses
And How To Build Them.

I-MAKING FRIENDS

Birds may be gathered about us in all seasons with ease and certainty merely by offering what they desire. In winter they are often pushed for food, and if we supply this need they will report daily at the lunch-counter and help to relieve the tedium of our indoor life.

In summer they care less for food provided by their human friends, and other means of attracting them must be sought. In warm weather especially, they appreciate fresh water for bathing and drinking. A small shallow pool becomes on hot days a center of attraction for all the birds in the vicinity, and it may be made with little effort and material. Only a small quantity of cement is required, and if that is lacking, a pan with stones in it, set in the ground, will be as serviceable. See Figure 1.

Birds are desirable about the premises not only on account of their beauty and song but because of their economic worth. They are especially useful as insect destroyers during the breeding period, when they have to work early and late to obtain sufficient food for their nestlings, and their movements at this time are more interesting than during any other season.

There is, therefore, a double purpose in offering them special nesting facilities. If mud is available, swallows, robins and phoebes will find and wall their nests with it. If feathers, bits of wool or twine are put out, a dozen different kinds of birds will make use of them. If safe retreats are furnished, in which birds can rear their young comfortably, most of them will be occupied. In fact, no attraction for summer birds is more effectual than a series of houses suited to the needs and habits of the various kinds of house birds.

A few years ago only four species were commonly regarded as house-birds—the house wren, the bluebird, the tree swallow and the martin. But since the movement to protect birds and make neighbors of them began, their nature and needs have become better understood and it is now known that many other species will avail themselves of houses constructed for them by their human friends.

Prepared from information furnished by Ned Dearborn, assistant biologist, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

This Little World

NEW ORLEANS

BY MASON DIXON

NEA Service Writer

New Orleans—Some weeks ago, when New Orleans found itself without a ghost, due to a gambler's confession that the Haunted House was only a gambling resort and that the sporting gentry had even hired "spirits" to groan and clank their chains, the young bloods of the city found a new hangout for ethereal citizens.

It was located in Gallatin street, a deserted little river-front thoroughfare once given over to hectic revels in the good old steamboat days. Now this little street, dark, narrow, lined with rickety, ancient, overhanging and sagging houses, is used by ragspickers and their ilk. For weeks society gallants had been taking their partners at the Vieux Carré balls to hear the ghost of Gallatin street. This particular ghost made a roaring, hissing sound.

Finally some brave beau, who was not in on the secret, ventured to beard the ghost in his den. It turned out to be the pet alligator of Judge Jules Brunot, who had parked his pet there for the winter.

American history records that General Andrew Jackson won the battle of New Orleans. Nearly all historians admit his victory was largely due to reinforcements rushed him by the pirate, Jean Lafitte.

Now New Orleans is considering erecting a monument, near that of General Jackson, to Pirate Lafitte.

For the first time since 1796 the dripping fountain of the Old Absinthe House has stopped. The marble slab under the faucet, worn almost through by the constant drip from the siphon, is dry.

No gentleman ever drank his absinthe mixed with a spoon. The absinthe had to be placed in a glass and then slowly dissolved by the drip from the fountain.

Recently New Orleans experienced its coldest weather in years. The bartenders at the Old Absinthe House, now politely called a soft drink emporium, forgot to protect the fountain. So it froze up and burst.

The price of turnip greens in New Orleans has soared to unheard-of heights. Negro mamies once sold them in the old French Market for almost a song, have become the aristocrats of vegetable vendors. It's due to Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy.

When he was in Louisiana recently he remarked that Tom Marshall, former vice president of the United States, had said that what the nation needed was a good five-cent cigar.

"Mr. Marshall is wrong," said Mr. Daniels. "What America needs is more corn pone, hog jowl and turnip greens."

Immediately New Orleans commenced the rush on turnip greens.

SEMI-GIRDLES

Girdles these days rarely entirely circumnavigate the waistline. They do duty either in the back or the front but not both places.

Thousands Die Who
Ought Not to DieKidney Troubles
Responsible

Never mind how much you pay for a kidney medicine, if it puts your kidneys in good shape, banishes that backache and drives puffiness from under the eyes.

Dr. Carey's Marshroot Prescription 777 (made of roots and herbs), costs $1.50 a package either in tablet or liquid form and its well worth the money.

A stitch in time saves nine—a few days' treatment right now with this amazing medicine may save a life—save heartbreak through grief—and perhaps the breaking up a happy home.

Never mind what you have tried before—if you get up through the night, if your palms are moist, if you even suspect you have kidney trouble, get Dr. Carey's Marshroot Prescription No. 777 today at Public Drug & Book Co., or any druggist anywhere and if it doesn't help you, if you aren't glad in a week's time that you bought it, go and get your money back—it will be waiting for you.—Adv.

THE SLIPPER OF RED BROCADE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

A novelist, seeking nocturnal adventure, leaves the ball room of the Marchioness of Drinning. While standing in the arched way leading into Shepherd's Market he sees a woman in evening dress chasing a small terrier. When the novelist sees that the dog has stolen the woman's slipper he is irresistibly attracted and is amazed to be addressed as "No. 9."

Several men come upon the scene and, blindfolded, he is taken to a room in a part of London unfamiliar to him. Many people are assembled there who plot to kill the Emperor of Berengaria. The novelist is addressed as "No. 9."

After much discussion, the novelist is given the task of killing the Emperor. He leaves the meeting place as the escort of the woman. He makes up his mind to try to convert this beautiful girl.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

I thought, "Now to tell her the truth." She could do me no harm. She might carry a weapon, but I was ready for her. Perhaps to save her . . . but, I don't know why, my course failed me, or rather I realized that it was no good. Behind this smooth forehead lay an idea which had eaten up every other impulse.

There was no moving her; I knew only too well how strongly women hold to an idea when they possess only one. So, instead, we talked of the brilliant night, where now the moon hung low like a pale pallid ball.

I found in Sylvia an unexpected poetic strain. She saw the future, when her house had triumphed, as one when mankind would no longer suffer, when no child would go hungry, when no woman would weep, when no beast would be overladen. It was mad and beautiful, this dream. At last I couldn't bear it any more, and, turning to her, said: "It's awful to think that inside 36 hours you may be . . . well, dead. And you're young, and you're so lovely. I think you're the loveliest creature I've ever seen. You make my heart melt."

She pressed my arm: "You're making love to me, aren't you? But I don't mind . . . Geoffrey. We haven't time to mind, we people. We must last long. I'm mad, too, to think that so soon you may die. I like you. Something goes soft in my throat when I hear your voice."

We reached Lansdowne Passage and passed between the clock walls. I could not help saying it: "Sylvia, do we love each other so soon?"

"I don't know," she replied, after a moment. "I've never seen you before. I suppose you've just joined. What's the good of it, anyway?"

Indeed, what was the good of it? We went silently up the steps into Berkeley Street. I saw a taxi crawling. It drew up, waited for us.

"Good night," murmured Sylvia, extending her hand.

I helped her in: "Don't go yet."

"I must. Good night." She snatched her hand away; the driver opened the taxi door. Then Sylvia turned and ran back to me, leading me into the darkness under the narrow roof.

As if gratifying a sudden desire, she flung her arms round my neck and pressed upon my lips a violent, a desperate kiss. There was in her grasp some agony, and in her career a purpose, as if thus she flung me with enthusiasm and fortitude.

IV

I SLEPT badly. The violent career disturbed me; I don't think I loved Sylvia really; I don't think so now; now that another . . . but I must tell in a later story. My excitement was so intense that I did not know what I wanted to do. Indeed, it was only when I reached Mivart's, a few minutes before one, that I knew I could not go on, that for a moment I had been bewitched.

pression of her attitude on the League. She replied she was not a supporter of the League in its present form, but had become an adherent of the League in her "own mind." Later she added that she would be for the League with the senate reservations.

She insisted, however, in organization of the policy committee and the just of award the League question had not been considered.

The committee adjourned until next Tuesday.

There were several passages between Senator Reed and Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, when Esther Everett Lape, member in charge of the policy committee of the Bok award insisted on her right to respond with more than a mere "yes" or "no" to questions propounded by the Missouri senator.

Senator Reed asked her for an expression of her attitude on the League. She replied she was not a supporter of the League in its present form, but had become an adherent of the League in her "own mind." Later she added that she would be for the League with the senate reservations.

but that even for her sake I could not do murder, risk all that murder involves. I knew that within an hour or so I must extricate myself from this appalling complication. Fortunately I could do so.

Lunch was charming. Sylvia appeared in a coat and skirt of tete de peure marocain, trimmed at the neck and wrists with kolinsky sable. The coat fell upon a rather lighter silk jumper; she looked boyish and delicate, though rather tall; her neck still had the thinness of youth. It was incredible that this little hand should be imbued in blood. At first we talked lightly of the plays of the day; of the advantages of London over Petrograd, and of its dullness compared with New York and Paris.

We made comments on the other luncheon; I was amused, for some of the adverse remarks hit one or two of my acquaintances. Only at the end did Sylvia insist upon reciting our plans for the next morning.

Everything was agreed. We sat back over coffee and benedictine, a strange pair of conspirators. She

"Oh yes, I assure you I shall be alive. Your friends won't touch me. It's too risky. Don't laugh. Do not imagine that I've come here without a weapon. Last night, when I left you at Lansdowne Passage, I was, well, half crazy with love for you. But I still had curiosity. I told myself that your slipper could not have been taken very far by the dog. He would tire of his game. So I went back."

"You went back?"

"Yes."

"But I went back!" she shrieked in agony. "I had to find it. I had to. I would have gone to find it if they hadn't taken us into the house . . . I dared not tell the comrades. I hoped to find it . . . but I couldn't find it . . . Oh, I went half mad. I . . . couldn't find it."

"No wonder," I replied, "for I found it."

"Where?"

"In Half Moon Street."

"Oh, what a fool I was! I didn't think the dog would have gone that way. I went up Down Street. Oh, what shall I do?"

"Nothing, Sylvia, nothing. When I found your slipper, I brought it to me. I kissed it. As I looked at it closely, under the sole I found a document, of which here is a copy."

She took it and dropped it at once. "What are you going to do?"

"Nothing. You will not deny that this is a complete list of the names and addresses of the members of the P. Committee. More exactly they are not names, but numbers. Still, only the addresses matter, for I expect your friends are already suspect. I shall not have you arrested, but I have posted the document already to my solicitor. My instructions are that if I die by violence, or by accident, the paper is to be handed over to the police. Now, Sylvia, which shall it be? Will you leave me unmolested? or will you go all your friends? Will you let our foreign visitor alone? or do you prefer to hang? I will do nothing . . . if you do nothing to me."

Tears formed in her eyes. She made a helpless gesture. "You have beaten us," she said. "The tyrant must escape, and you, too, must escape. I suppose. But do not think that you will turn us from our purpose."

We rose from the table. I did not reply. I knew that nothing could be done, that it was no use arresting her, for others would spring up after she fell. It was enough to have saved two lives, the Emperor's and mine. She waited politely while the cloakroom attendant gave me my hat and stick. He also gave me a small brown paper parcel which I held out to her: "Permit me," I said, "to return your slipper."

MY DAUGHTER WOULD CRY AT EVERYTHING

Nervous and Irritable. By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Became Entirely Normal

Clinton, Wisconsin.—"My daughter was in a very run-down condition, and was irritable, and would cry at every little thing she was so weak and nervous. As Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had helped me when I was a girl I gave it to her, and the results were all that I could wish for. I wish that every mother with growing girls would try it for these troubles girls often have. I had taken it myself before my girl was born, and she was one of the nicest babies any one could wish to have. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to women and girls and cannot praise it too highly."

Mrs. I. A. Holford, Box 45, Clinton, Wisconsin.

Mothers can depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve their daughters of those troubles they so often have. They know from experience the value of the Vegetable Compound in the treatment of these complaints and many like Mrs. Holford, give it to their daughters.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulfur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

settled, "you're a strange Daniel to come to judgment over me, you, a professional murderer." I was rather rude, but one does not like being called a mad.

"Oh, words," she replied with a sneer. "The only thing that I care about is that you, a man of your kind, should know our plans. Of course you'll go to the police. Why don't you have me arrested?"

"I'm sure I don't know. I ought to. You make me sick. Men are always like that to women, I suppose. Oh, what am I going to do? You know everything."

"Look here, Sylvia," I cried. "I may be a cad, but I'm not going to give you away. I shall, of course, let the Emperor of Berengaria know that henceforth he must be guarded; but I shall not have you arrested; you can go free if you like, and I hope this will be a warning to you, that you won't go on with this madness."

Then Sylvia went to the heart of the question: "I don't care what happens to me, but I care what happens to the comrades. You know our secret. Very well. You'll . . ."

She laughed: "Fool, that you are! Why did you meddle with such things? Don't you understand that within a day, whether I am arrested or not, within a day you will be remembered? But the was said, but it grew angry: "I don't suppose that in another day you will be alive."

LETTER FROM BEATRICE GRIM-SHAW TO RICHARD SUMMERS

I am sending this letter to you in Chicago, dear Dick, because I could not explain by wire just why I was not going to meet you.

In the first place, Dick, you don't particularly want to see me. You want to see Paula Perier. You should know, however, that I do not care to see Paula Perier. She is nothing to me, and I know without seeing her, from the things I have read between the lines of your letter, the things which you did not intend to tell me, but which stood out plainer than what you really wrote. That is, that you want me to meet Miss Perier so that I may see how irresistible she is.

All this I know, dear Dick. I give you credit for being loyal, as men look upon loyalty. I give you credit for hating to hurt me, but I also know that you have met a very beautiful woman of a kind you have never known before, and she has swept you right off your feet.

I am not sure that, even had you never met her, you and I would be happy together out there in Hollywood where you will probably make your home in the future. This, dear Dick, is not because I could not adapt myself to the life of Hollywood, which is probably not so much different from the life anywhere else, if we only knew it, but because you would never allow me to know the life of Hollywood, or the life of your Bohemian friends, wherever we might live.

You have put me on a pedestal, Dick; you have made me something very impossible, very cold.

I wonder how many women who have been raised to a pedestal in their husband's minds have hated and despised that cold, narrow place in the walls of a man's affections.

I know enough about my sex, Dick, to understand that we women are all more or less alike. If the men who marry us would treat us with the same frankness, the same sincerity that they do the Paula Periers and all the other women to whom they go to from us there probably would not be so many divorces.

I am bidding you goodbye, Dick, don't try to see me. It would be foolish of you to come way up here in Minnesota just for the sake of harrowing your soul and mine with a conventional parting. And now I am going to be just human enough, dear Dick, to tell you that even if Miss Perier returns your love you will not be any happier with her than you would have been with me.

You are thoroughly imbued, my dear, with the idea that no one woman can be all things to one man. If you marry Paula Perier, after the first flush of the honeymoon is over, you will miss finding in her the calmness and quiet affection which you think only I can give you.

Of course you are wrong, Dick. Either one of us could probably give you everything you desire if you ask it of us, but you never will. From Paula you will ask the fire and always be seeking the coolness and sanity which you remember are mine. Of me you have received the content and comfort of an every-day all-round woman, but you would never think of appealing to me in any great emotional stress. I am afraid you will never be happy Dick, under any circumstances.

weather, or going for hours with wet feet, should be avoided.

The gastro-intestinal tract must be carefully attended to avoid any chance of intestinal poisoning. If the digestive tract is kept in a healthy condition by sensible diet and plenty of good drinking water thus avoiding attacks of constipation, one may be fairly immune. Swollen and inflamed tonsils and adenoid tissue, or poison from pus infection at the roots of teeth, may also weaken the system by poisoning the life stream.

Your condition of resistance should be constantly kept in mind to avoid influenza. Worry and nervous troubles lower your vital powers and weaken the endocrine system.

Beware of the least appearance of sore throat or a beginning dull headache. Don't let any such condition go for even an hour if you can possibly prevent it.

Be sure you get the full required time of sleep. Don't overwork your heart.

The weakened heart spells nervous ailments. These may seriously affect the kidneys and cause depression of the glandular system.

Hold Hearing at Bed of Mabel's Companion

Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 23.—The bedside of Mrs. Edith Burns, former companion of Mabel Normand, film actress, was today's setting for the preliminary hearing of Horace Greer, Miss Normand's chauffeur charged with attempting to kill Courtland S. Dines.

With her testimony the prosecution will rest its case, it was announced.

The liquor question and the forgetfulness of witnesses mingled at yesterday's session.

Two policemen testified over the strenuous objection of the defense to a flood of utterances alleged to have been made by Greer soon after the shooting in which he was quoted as saying he tried to get Miss Normand away from Dine's apartment because "the dirty rat kept her drunk."

10c MATINEE For BOYS and GIRLS

Special Performance

Public Drug & Book Co.

Invites all the Boys and Girls to bring Old Wooden Pencil Stubs to our store. Fifteen Gold, Silver, Rolled Silver, Nickel and Aluminum Ingersoll Pencils will be given to the Boys and Girls bringing in the most Wooden Stubs. These prizes will be given away by Wesley Barry in person at the

DIXON THEATRE

at 4 P. M. Friday Afternoon

HOW TO GET PENCIL STUBS

Collect your old pencil stubs quickly. Clean out the desks at school and home. Offices and wholesale houses always have old stubs around. Tell them Wesley Barry is demonstrating the economy of the Ingersoll Pencil by showing how much of a wooden pencil is wasted in the stub and whittling.

20—Prizes and Souvenirs—20

15 Pencils to Boys and Girls bringing in the most Old Wooden Pencils Stubs.
1—To the Freckled Face Red Haired Boy in the audience that looks most like Wesley Barry.
1—To the Handsomest Kid.
1—To the Homeliest Kid.
1—To the Fattest Kid.
